Oil Leases Sought On 6000 Acres

Meeting Called At Frankfort Next Tues. Night

Who ever thought that oil might be located in Frankfort Township? Well, evidently oil men of experience think there is more than a possibility of striking oil in this township, and the residents of Frankfort are beginning to wonder what will happen next!

Thursday Joe McGlashen of Chicago, who owns about a thousand acres in Frankfort township, called in Frankfort and arranged for a meeting to be held next Tuesday night in the village hall in Frankfort at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of buying oil leases on 6000 acres of land to the east and south of Frankfort. These leases will be for a five year period.

Farmers who lease their lands can continue to farm the land just the same, and in event of drilling operations while crops are growing, they will be paid for any damage done to crops, it is said.

The oil promoters plan to acquire oil leases on land in Green Garden Township and may also include the eastern half of Frankfort township.

Mr. McGlashen states that the oil promoters are experienced men and are financially responsible and can carry out any deal they undertake.

All the farmers and other land owners are urged to attend the meeting next Tuesday night at Frankfort at which time the proposed project will be explained in detail.

A number of years ago Frankfort and New Lenox townships were on the verge of an oil boom, but for some reason or other it did not materialize.

MOKENA PASSES 11 P. M. TAVERN CLOSING LAW

The Mokena village board passed the saloon license ordinance Tuesday night, fixing the saloon license fee at $100 per year, payable in semi-annual installments. The ordinance also provides that all saloons must close at 11 p. m. and fixes three as the number of saloons or taverns which may be operated in the village at one time.

Objection has been raised by the tavern keepers and their patrons to the closing hours. They point out that neighboring towns operate to midnight. C. A. Mitchell, Jr., vice-president of the Mitchell Brewery of Mokena appeared before the village board and asked the board to extend the closing hour to midnight, but the board refused to change from the 11 o'clock closing hour, but the board did agree that if the tavern keepers can prove satisfactorily to the board that the 11 o'clock closing hour is causing them to sustain such losses as will drive them out of business they would consider making an amendment to the ordinance calling for a later closing hour. The board called attention to the fact that Mokena will go on new time beginning April 30th and that the 11 o'clock closing hour which is based on standard time will mean mid-night when the new time goes into effect.

The ordinance further provides that all tavern windows must be free from all obstructions so that a clear unobstructed view of the interior may be had at all times, day or night time.

The new licenses will go in effect April first.

MOKENA WINS BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Tinley opened the tournament on Thursday evening very effectively. They came from behind a 16 to 10 score at the half to defeat New Lenox 32 to 27. Mokena and Frankfort were tied 18 to 18 at the half. Mokena was victorious 49 to 35. Orland led Joliet 27 to 15 at the half and went right on to win 57 to 29. Oak Lawn was leading Morgan Park 11 to 10 at the half but were nosed out 23 to 21.

An exhibition game was held between two Tinley girls teams to open the program Friday night after their Morgan Park opponents failed to arrive. Mokena led Tinley 19 to 5 at the half. Tinley outscored Mokena in the second half but went down under a 33 to 23 defeat. Because of several protests one by Joliet regarding the eligibility of Kline, and a counter protest by Orland with reference to the tournament rules it was agreed to strike this game from the records and have it replayed. This game was much closer than the previous one, Orland led 11 to 6 at the half and won 28 to 21. This replay upset the program and Orland had to play another game Friday against Morgan Park. Morgan Park led 19 to 18 at the half and continued to defeat the pretty well tuckered out Orland team 43 to 29.

Then came Sunday and Tinley after trailing 17 to 16 at the half managed to nose out Orland 31 to 30, thereby providing the big upset of the tournament. This victory gave Tinley third place. Mokena then won the tournament crowding Morgan Park into second place with an easy 25 to 12 victory.

The basketball committee and the Triangle Club wish to thank all for their fine patronage.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER LEARNS OLD
MOTHER NATURE
KNOWS BEST

PETER RABBIT sat under his favorite old Bramble Bush in the middle of the Old Briar Patch, and Peter wasn't altogether happy. No, sir, he wasn't as happy as he should have been. You see, he was feeling rather dissatisfied. It seemed to him that everybody had more than he. At least, that is what he tried to make himself believe. He wanted to believe it, and you know you can make yourself believe almost anything if you want to bad enough.

Peter was waiting for Nimbleheels, the Jumping Mouse, to return. Nim-

"What Kind of Seeds Are Those?" Asked Peter.

Nimbleheels had gone to search for a pocketful of seeds. It was finding out that little Nimbleheels has a pair of handy pockets in his cheeks that had made foolish Peter dissatisfied.

"Old Mother Nature isn't at all fair," muttered Peter. "Why didn't she give me pockets? Why should she have given Striped Chipmunk and this little snip of a Mouse pockets and not me?" Peter quite forgot that he was not the only one without pockets. You see, he was thinking only of himself.

"What is good for one is good for another," he continued, still talking to himself. "I'd like to go out and fill a couple of pockets and then come home and eat in peace. Nothing would be nicer. No, sir, Old Mother Nature hasn't been at all fair. I was taught when I was little that she knows best, but I don't believe it. I certainly do not. I would be ever so much better off if I had a couple of nice, handy pockets."

Just then Nimbleheels returned with a pocketful of seeds which he emptied in a little pile and at once began to eat. "What kind of seeds are those?" asked Peter.

"Some grass seeds, but mostly weed seeds," replied Nimbleheels. "Won't you have a couple?"

Peter turned his head to hide a smile. "No, I thank you," he replied politely. "I am not very fond of seeds. My teeth are not made for them. I like green food such as sweet clover, grass and vegetables, when I can get them in Farmer Brown's garden." Inside he was laughing at the offer of a couple of seeds, and thinking that it would take all Nimbleheels had brought to make even a good taste.

"You were quite right when you called those pockets handy," said Peter. "I wouldn't mind having a couple myself. I suppose you can carry a whole dinner in them."

Nimbleheels nodded. "They will hold a lot of seeds," said he, "more than I can eat at one time. But I don't think you would have much use for pockets in your cheeks, Peter."

"Why haven't I, just as much as you?" demanded Peter indignantly.

The little bright, beady eyes of Nimbleheels twinkled and snapped, but he didn't even smile as he said: "From what I have seen of you, Peter, your stomach is bigger than any two pockets in your cheeks could possibly be. Besides, the kind of food you eat couldn't be put in a pocket very well. I rather think you'll find, if you think it over, that Old Mother Nature knows best."

Peter pulled his whiskers thoughtfully. He remembered what a lot of sweet clover he could eat at one meal, and then tried to imagine crowding it into a couple of pockets in his cheeks. The idea made him laugh right out. "You are right, Nimbleheels," he cried. "There isn't the least doubt about it. Mother Nature does know best. She certainly does."

The memorial, the shaft of which will stand 350 feet high, will cost some $2,000,000. Work is expected to start on it this year.

THEY'RE BARRED

Three Javanese fruit bats, known as "flying foxes," came to California by steamer recently, consigned to the Catalina islands aviaries. Effort was made to have the strange creatures admitted alive, promise being made that they would be closely confined, but the quarantine service at San Pedro would not pass them, as they constitute a major fruit pest in their native land. The bats were then killed and turned over to the Los Angeles museum for stuffing and preservation. The fruit bat is common in the Philippines and the Far East and is said to be a voracious consumer of fruit and fruit blossoms. —Los Angeles Times.

The WEDDING MARCH MURDER

SYNOPSIS

Waiting in the minister's study, Jim Franklin, about to be married to Doris Carmody, is stabbed to death. Peter Cardigan, with Sergeant Kilday, begin the investigation. Franklin, while waiting, had visitors, among them his mistress, "Choo Choo" Train; his intended wife's father, Ambrose Carmody; her brother, Rylie; Daniel Bullis, politician, and a woman in a blue frock. Rylie Carmody admits trying to stop the wedding, after being informed by Webster Spears that Franklin was still friendly with Choo Choo, despite his approaching marriage. Kilday secures the dead man's keys. From Callis Shipley, one of the bridesmaids, Rylie's friend, the investigators learn nothing. An interview with Bullis is fruitless. Webster Spears admits informing Rylie Carmody of Franklin's relations with Choo Choo, for Doris Carmody's sake, in the hope of preventing the wedding. Fletcher, Franklin's man-servant, is reticent. An interview with Milo Dunbar, Franklin's law partner, and search of the dead man's office reveals nothing of importance. Choo Choo admits her relations with Franklin were to continue after his marriage. Six of the seven keys Franklin carried are traced to their respective locks. One the investigators are unable to place. Callis Shipley, again interviewed, confesses previous deception, but nothing new is elucidated.

CHAPTER VII
—15—

Kilday's Case

"But that's impossible, man," exclaimed Sergeant Kilday impatiently. "The gun belonged to the murderer."

Peter picked the revolver from the desk and examined it critically. Would this, like every other trail they had discovered in this curious case end in a blind alley? He whistled, tunelessly. How could Jim Franklin, stabbed through the heart, have concealed the weapon in the rectory garden, before returning to the study to die? Obviously, that was impossible. The revolver had been concealed by the murderer, certainly. Peter revolved the question in his mind methodically. Had Franklin carried the weapon to his wedding, fearing trouble? If so, why had he not used it, when attacked?

Or again, granting that he had tried to use his gun and had been too slow, why had the slayer taken such precautions to conceal it? What story did the weapon have to tell that the slayer wished to hide? It was Franklin's own gun. His possession of it could scarcely reveal the identity of the assailant. He thought of the thumb-print, but dismissed it with a shrug. The murderer had had no difficulty in wiping the prints of his fingers from the hilt of the knife. No, that was not the answer. "What do you make of it, Sergeant?" the novelist inquired. "Why should the guilty person have taken the precaution to hide his victim's gun?"

"Doesn't make sense," growled Kilday, chewing savagely on his cigar. "If I had killed a man who was carrying a gun, I'd have left the gun alone. Then, if I ever was caught, I could plead self-defense."

"How is this for a theory?" Peter volunteered. "If Jim Franklin had had the gun in his possession, he certainly would have defended himself with it, wouldn't he? He wouldn't have carried a weapon to his wedding if he hadn't expected danger. That being true, why didn't he shoot his assailant the minute he was attacked?"

"If we grant that he was armed, then we admit he was expecting trouble. But Royce heard nothing—apparently Franklin never even cried out. My idea is that he never had that revolver."

"But hang it, man, it was Franklin's own gun!" expostulated the detective.

"There's no doubt of that," Cardigan agreed, "but people have been known to borrow guns before. Obviously, the guilty person was taking every precaution to conceal his identity. It seems that he first planned to borrow his victim's gun for the occasion. After his arrival in the study, however, he saw Doctor Abernathy's dagger hanging among his trophies on the wall. The knife was the more silent method of the two, so he determined to use it, instead of the revolver. This presented only one difficulty. For some reason, not yet apparent to us, he did not want to leave the revolver beside the body. And certainly, it was a dangerous thing to carry around, as its discovery would connect him with the slain man, should the ownership of the weapon be traced. Therefore, he concealed the gun in the garden."

"Then how about the thumb-print? Do you think we'll still be able to trace him by that?"

"I have my doubts," Peter declared. "Why should he have left a thumb-print on the revolver, when he took the precaution to wipe off the knife, unless," and the novelist sat suddenly forward in his chair, "by George, Sergeant, that's it! Unless he wanted us to find that thumb-print. Have you taken the finger-prints of the dead man?"

"We always take them, during the medical examination," replied the detective.

"Go get them, quick," Peter sprang to his feet and began a restless pacing of the floor. "I'm beginning to get it, now. That thumb-print belongs to Jim Franklin, and it was made after his death. The murderer, taking every precaution to conceal his own identity, pressed his victim's thumb against the barrel after the crime, so that if we ever found the weapon, it could lead us only to the dead man. Very clever, too, and if it wasn't for your practice of finger-printing dead men, we might have searched all our lives for the possessor of that print."

Sergeant Kilday hastened in search of the photographic records which included the finger-prints of the slain man. The novelist had been correct. The thumb-print found on the revolver barrel tallied exactly with that of Jim Franklin.

"That also identifies another set of finger-prints in the study," declared Kilday. "They had already been matched with this thumb-print. It leaves only one set unidentified—the small prints, which I think were made by a woman, probably the woman in blue."

"The woman in blue," agreed the novelist. "Just because we don't know who she is, we can't overlook her. It's quite possible this fifth set of prints was made by her."

Kilday chuckled softly. "Now it doesn't look so bad," he said. "When Spears' prints didn't match the one on the revolver, I'll admit I began to feel the ground slipping out from under me. But now—well, it fits better than ever. That was a lucky hunch, Peter. I never would have thought of looking for Franklin's print on the gun. It seemed so obvious that he couldn't have hidden it in the garden after he was murdered."

Peter took a turn around the room, hands clasped behind his back, his brow knitted in thought. "At any rate," he began slowly, "this gives us another place to start. If we find the man or woman who had the opportunity to remove Franklin's revolver from his room, it should help."

"Sounds like Choo Choo," mused Kilday. "She had access to his rooms."

"Then What Are You Trying to Hide?"

Or, if we can prove there was anything between him and the Shipley girl, she might have done it. That may be what she's trying to hide."

"She tried to protect Rylie Carmody first," Peter pointed out. "Now she seems to be protecting Webster Spears. How does that connect up with the gun?"

"Suppose," the detective ventured, "that she gave Rylie the gun. Rylie would be the one she'd try to protect. But later, if she discovered that he had passed it on to young Spears, wouldn't that cause her to change her story? Whatever the reason was, she did change her story. Our best bet now is to discover who procured that revolver."

"Don't overlook Fletcher," Peter cautioned. "That fellow may know more than he's saying. Come to think of it, he was very careful about mentioning Franklin's callers. I questioned him on the subject."

Kilday puffed his stogy thoughtfully. "How about Nick Royce? He was intimate with Franklin, and probably in his apartment often. He met Franklin there, before they went to the church. What was to prevent him from slipping the revolver in his pocket then?"

"Or the woman in blue," Peter returned to the subject of the mysterious woman whose identity continued to baffle them. "According to Dan Bullis, she was in love with Franklin, and he had been indiscreet where she was concerned, to say the least. It isn't unreasonable to assume that she had access to his apartment. And we know that she was in the study a short time before his death. Perhaps she is the one who took the revolver from his rooms after learning his determination to marry another woman."

He reached for his hat. "Bring the gun, Sergeant. Let's have a talk with this man Fletcher. We'll never find out how that gun got into the rectory garden, sitting here."

Pending settlement of Franklin's affairs, his apartment was being kept open, and they found the servant there. "Were you wanting to have another look around, sir?" he inquired.

"We want to ask you a few more questions, Fletcher," Peter tried, without success, to penetrate the man's suave mask. He only looked politely interested.

"I believe you told us that Nick Royce and Dan Bullis were Mr.

Franklin's only visitors here yesterday," the novelist continued. "You are sure that's right?"

"No, sir, that isn't right," Fletcher sidestepped the trap. "Mr. Royce came, after lunch, and accompanied Mr. Franklin to the church. Mr. Bullis telephoned, repeatedly, but he never came here. The young Mr. Carmody was the other caller. You misunderstood me, sir, about that."

Peter nodded. "My mistake, Fletcher. So Mr. Royce and Mr. Carmody were the only visitors yesterday. Think carefully, I must be sure."

"I'm quite sure that is correct, sir. If there had been any other visitors, I should have known it. I was here all the time."

The novelist was apparently engrossed in the lighting of a cigarette, but his eyes never wavered from the man's face. "How about the day before?" he shot at him suddenly. "Do you recall what visitors Franklin had that day?"

The man hesitated. "There have been so many things happening, Mr. Cardigan. I don't recall anything unusual about that day, if that's what you mean."

"But there was nothing unusual about visitors calling here to see Mr. Franklin, was there?"

"Oh, no, sir. But unless there were something unusual about it, I couldn't say exactly who called on any certain day."

"Come, come, Fletcher," Kilday interrupted impatiently. "That's only two days ago. You wouldn't have to have the memory of an elephant to remember that."

"No, sir. Of course not." But still the servant faltered.

"Then what are you trying to hide?" demanded the detective brusquely.

"I'm not trying to hide anything, sir. I have done nothing—"

Peter interrupted him. "Perhaps it's nothing that you have done, but something concerning Mr. Franklin, that you think had best remain unknown." His tone was kindly. "Now I was Franklin's friend, too, Fletcher. If there is some incident that should remain a secret, I can promise you that neither of us is anxious to make it known, provided, of course, that it has nothing to do with his death. But you must let us be the judge of that."

Fletcher shrugged. His face remained an impassive mask, behind which Cardigan's keen glance failed to penetrate. "I'm sorry, you misunderstood me, sir. There's nothing to conceal. It's only that I don't recall just who came here that day."

"Was Bullis here?" Kilday demanded.

"No, sir. I'm sure of that. I've never seen Mr. Bullis, although I've often talked to him, on the phone."

"Who was the woman here that day, Fletcher?" It was Cardigan questioning now.

"The woman?" The servant stared blankly. "What woman? I don't recall any woman visitor."

"Perhaps it was Choo Choo Train," Peter continued, ignoring the man's reply. "She came here often, didn't she?"

Fletcher hesitated, apparently searching his mind. "I can't be sure," he said. "She may have been here that day. She did come here every once in a while."

Kilday snorted. "Every once in a while! Why she was here nearly every day, wasn't she?"

"No, sir." The man glanced first at the detective, then at Cardigan, uncertainly. "That is the truth," he volunteered. "Of course I know you gentlemen are aware of Mr. Franklin's affair—he groped for a word—'ah—connection, with the actress, but just the same, she did not come here as often as you might expect. They maintained separate apartments, and I believe Mr. Franklin visited her there."

"Did she have a key to this place?" Peter asked next.

The man nodded.

"Then perhaps she could have come here yesterday, or the day before, without your knowledge."

"Possibly," Fletcher shrugged. "But it doesn't sound plausible, sir. I was here all the time. I think I should have known it, if she had been here."

Peter sat astride of a chair, facing the man. His lean brown fingers drummed a tattoo against his knee, in time to his racing thoughts. For the moment he seemed to have forgotten the man he was questioning. "Who else had a key to this place, Fletcher?" he demanded.

"I—I beg your pardon, sir?" The question evidently had caught the servant off balance. He wiped the palms of his hands with his handkerchief, folding the linen carefully before returning it to his pocket. But he had heard the question, clearly enough, for after a long interval of hesitation, he answered. "If there are any other keys, sir, I don't know who has them."

"There have been a number of other women in Franklin's life," Peter continued evenly. "A great many, before Choo Choo, and probably some since. How long has it been since one of those women visited your master here, Fletcher?"

"I think," the servant replied slowly, "that Mr. Franklin was very much in love with Miss Train, sir. I don't believe there have been any other women he has cared for, recently, except," he added apologetically, "Miss Carmody, of course."

LAST SILK DRESS OF CONFEDERACY MADE WAR PRIZE

A recent acquisition of the Army Aeronautical museum at Wright field is a small portion of the gas bag of a balloon used by the Confederate army for observation purposes. This is a portion of a larger piece presented to the National museum in Washington by the son of Prof. Thaddeus S. C. Lowe, the latter having figured very prominently in the aerial activities of the Union army.

This piece of cloth is valuable not only as a reminder of the use of aircraft in the Civil war, but of the ingenuity displayed by a poverty-stricken army in providing equipment. General Longstreet, in "Our March Against Pope," relates an interesting bit of history in this connection as experienced by the opposing forces.

"It may be of interest," he wrote, "to relate an incident which illustrates the pinched condition of the Confederacy, even as early as 1862. The Federals had been using balloons to examine our positions, and we watched with envious eyes their beautiful observations as they floated high in the air well out of the range of our guns. While we were longing for the balloons our poverty denied us, a genius suggested that we gather together all the silk dresses in the Confederacy and make a balloon. It was done, and soon we had a grotesquely patterned ship of many and varied hues which was ready for use in the seven days' campaign. We had no gas except at Richmond, and it was the custom to inflate the balloon there, tie it securely to an engine and run it down the York River railroad to any point at which we desired to set it up.

"One day it was on a steamer down the James river when the tide went out and left the vessel and balloon high and dry on a bar. The Federals gathered it in and with it the last silk dress in the Confederacy. This capture was the meanest trick of the war and one which I have never forgiven."

Patriotism, sacrifice, ardor and romance, quite aside from its aerial activities, hang about that varnished and faded silk.—Washington Post.

Dead Volcanoes in Lake Near Superior's Surface

Volcanoes, both active and defunct, are widespread throughout the world, but the last place we would have thought them to be probably would have been under the waters of Lake Superior, observes a writer in the New Orleans Times-Picayune. And yet a couple of such—the dead variety, thank heaven—have been discovered in the bed of the world's largest fresh water body. At a point midway between Thunder bay and Michipicoten island, in Canadian waters, a shoal has been found, 30 miles from any shelter. There has been discovered a peak 100 feet in diameter covered by only three and a half fathoms of water. A second nearby is smaller and deeper, but both, now to be marked by the Canadian department of marine, are asserted to be the cones of extinct fire mountains.

The question is, shall the peaks be cut down to a safe depth, or shall they be permanently marked and lighted? The first alternative is more costly, but the permanent upkeep of the second is most forbidding. Decision remains to be made.

LACK OF TELEPHONE PROVES DISASTROUS—Lehigh, Neb., World

The need of a telephone in the house was brought out forcibly when a bolt of lightning set fire to buildings on the Yunek farm northwest of town last Friday morning. With no means of summoning help at his command, Mr. Knapp rushed to the home of a neighbor to use his 'phone but found also that the neighbor was without a telephone. He was then obliged to go all the way to town to call the Fire Department and by the time help reached the farm great damage had been done by the flames. The cost of telephone service could have been paid for many times over with the amount of money involved in the loss.

CHEVROLET factories are breaking records, trying to give America all the cars it wants. 4000 units a day are rolling off the assembly lines. In fact, more Chevrolets are now being produced than any other make of automobile in the world.

Naturally, Chevrolet is proud of the record its factories have made this year. Especially so, in view of the fact that the 1934 Chevrolet is not merely last year's model improved, but a basically new automobile throughout. Producing so many of these cars so early in the season, and producing them all up to Chevrolet high standards of quality, is nothing short of a real accomplishment!

Chevrolet takes this opportunity to thank the American public for the wonderful way it has received the 1934 Chevrolet car. And Chevrolet is happy to report, that with over 4,000 cars a day being built, dealers everywhere will soon be in a position to make immediate deliveries.

Any licensee may renew his license at the expiration thereof, provided he is then qualified to receive a license and the premises for which such renewal license is sought are suitable for such purpose; AND, PROVIDED FURTHER, that the renewal privilege herein provided for shall not be construed as a vested right which shall in any case prevent the president from decreasing the number of licenses to be issued within his jurisdiction.

11. CHANGE OF LOCATION.—A retail liquor dealer's license shall permit the sale of alcoholic liquor only in the premises described in the application and license. Such location may be changed only upon the written permit to make such change issued by the president. All rooms where liquor is sold for consumption upon the premises shall be continuously lighted during business hours by natural light or artificial white light so that all parts of the interior of the premises shall be clearly visible. In case the view into any such licensed premises required by the foregoing provisions, shall be willfully obscured by the licensee or by him willfully suffered to be obscured or in any manner obstructed, then such license shall be subject to revocation in the manner herein provided. In order to enforce the provisions of this section, the president shall have the right to require the filing with him of plans, drawings and photographs showing the clearance of the view as above required.

19. No person licensed under this ordinance shall permit hoodlums, police characters, vagrants or vagabonds as defined by "An Act to Revise the Law in Relation to Criminal Jurisprudence", to congregate upon the premises nor shall such persons permit any disorderly conduct or disturbance of the peace thereupon.

20. REVOCATION.—The president may revoke any retail liquor dealer's license for any violation of any provision of this ordinance, or for any violation of any State law pertaining to the sale of alcoholic liquor.

Chicago Units of University Serve Mankind

Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy Colleges Located in World's Great Medical Area.

While the main part of the University of Illinois is located in the Twin Cities of Urbana-Champaign, three of its important units are in Chicago. The College of Medicine, the College of Dentistry, and the College of Pharmacy help make up that great medical area surrounding the Cook County hospital.

All three units, scholastically speaking, are leaders. The College of Pharmacy was the first school of its kind to be established west of the Alleghenies; the College of Dentistry is one of eleven in the country that requires a six year course; the College of Medicine has for years had a long waiting list of those seeking entrance. Research work and scientific investigations play almost as important a function of these units as does the teaching.

The question is often asked: "What is the State of Illinois doing to check the stream of human wreckage. The answer is that one of the most unique arrangements for the care of that group of sick and crippled who can not afford medical service, for the training of young doctors, and for research into the cause and prevention of disease exists in Chicago—in the heart of the world's greatest medical center. The Research and Educational Hospital operated co-operatively by the University of Illinois College of Medicine and the State Department of Public Welfare is this unusual institution. This group is located in the south of the Cook County Hospital plant.

Civilization's Backwash.

Scarcely had the first unit been completed and the equipment set in place when the backwash of the advance of civilization began to sweep through the portals of the hospital. The maimed, the sick, and the halt sought the solace their state held out to them. Where misfortune has wiped away position, home and the ability to maintain the former standard of living, and sickness and disease has come in place of affluence, thousands of citizens of the state have become almost public charges unable to pay for medical attention they so badly need. The Research and Educational Hospital is the answer to their prayers.

Only those who are unable to pay for the medical and surgical attention they receive are taken in. There are more of this category than the institution can possibly care for. More than 90,000 came seeking aid during the past year. Destitution and actual want stalked with each of these suffering. Without the supporting hand of the state, gesturing through these two humanitarian departments, much of not all of this human driftwood would sink into oblivion and the Potter's field, or fill the poorhouses and clog the institutions of charity privately maintained.

Threefold Purpose.

The Research and Educational Hospital has a threefold purpose. The first, of course, is the cure of the ill of the poor. That in itself is of primary importance, but scarcely less important is the second purpose, that of instructing young doctors so that they may go out into the state and care for the health of the public. The third and last is scientific investigation into the causes and cure of disease with a view to its prevention and effective remedy. The future benefit in this instance cannot easily be realized. The check and prevention of yellow fever and diphtheria are only two cases that result from this type of work.

For the accomplishment of these purposes there are provided laboratories, libraries, classrooms, clinics and hospital facilities, manned by some of the finest medical, surgical and research talent in the country, all housed within the walls of this great institution of mercy. Students, guided by their physician-instructors, attend the sick watching over them, treating them and through their close association with the actual cases of suffering learn the fundamentals of the great profession of medicine. In the laboratories, some of the most eminent research scholars of the country delve into the mysteries of disease and the malfunctioning of the human mechanism, and try to solve the problems of cure and prevention.

U. of I. Enrollment Begins Upward Climb

Student enrollment at the University of Illinois is on the upswing. Although the number of students enrolled this fall is less than a year ago, the freshmen class enrollment of 2,769 is 234 more than last. This indicates that the entire student body will be greater in the next three or four years.

Students from every county in the state help to make up the total fall enrollment of 9,996. On the Urbana-Champaign campus there are 8,843, while the University's departments in Chicago have an enrollment of 1,153 for the first semester.

As usual Cook and Champaign counties take first and second places in size of enrollment—Cook because of its dense metropolitan population and Champaign because many families move here while their children attend the University. There are 2,366 from Cook and 1,165 from Champaign county. Other counties with more than 100 enrolled at the State University are Vermilion, 221; Peoria, 172; Sangamon, 148; Kane, 147; Macon, 131; St. Clair, 131; La Salle, 100; Madison, 100; and Winnebago, 100.

Public Demands Education

Public opinion demands that educational opportunities for young men and women shall be maintained. The hope of democracy lies in the diffusion of knowledge and wisdom and our educational institutions are the country's best insurance for its future.

Guard Against Too Strenuous Reducing

THE recent death of Renee Adoree, which was attributed to a too strenuous reducing schedule, has helped to focus attention on this danger. A warning on this health hazard is greatly needed for, although many people do not have enough will power even to keep to a sane reducing plan, there are also many, of the opposite type who have too much will power or at least wrongly directed ones. These are the ones who starve themselves, take too violent exercise, or use other unsafe reduction methods eventually losing weight—and health along with it.

No reducing diet should contain less than 1400 calories per day. But it is not sufficient simply to take a calorie chart and figure a diet that will add up right in the 1400 calorie diet. The protective foods—fresh milk, fruits, vegetables and eggs—should have a large part, because only by using these foods regularly can you protect yourself against deficiencies in the diet which are particularly likely to occur when you are cutting down on food.

Fresh milk is especially useful for the individual who is reducing because though it is not high in calories it is conveniently the food highest in food value.

Further, you will get double value from your protective food reducing diet because while it's helping to take off pounds, it's also helping you add to your beauty.

Two Useful Fruits

EVERYBODY likes grapefruit and everybody likes pineapple, but have you ever thought of combining these two useful fruits in recipes which should thus be doubly appealing to the palate? If you haven't here are some which will show you how to do it.

Pineapple and Grapefruit Shortcake: Boil three-fourths cup canned pineapple syrup, three-fourths cup canned grapefruit syrup and two tablespoons sugar five minutes. Cool, add two cups diced canned pineapple and two cups canned grapefruit sections and serve on hot, rich baked powder biscuits, split and buttered. This makes enough eight.

A Combination Salad

Pineapple and Grapefruit Salad with Cheese Dressing: Drain the contents of two 8-ounce cans of Hawaiian pineapple tidbits (or one and one-half cups diced sliced pineapple), and toss lightly with one cup canned grapefruit sections, one cup orange sections and one-half cup halved, seeded grapes. Pile in lettuce leaves and pour over the following cheese dressing. Serves eight.

Cheese Dressing: Shake together in six tablespoons salad oil, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon pineapple syrup, and salt and paprika to taste. Smooth slowly into four tablespoons crumbled Roquefort cheese and add two tablespoons chopped pimiento.

A Cocktail for March 17

Emerald Isle Cocktail: Combine the syrup from a No. 2 can of Hawaiian sliced pineapple and a No. 2 can of grapefruit, sweeten slightly if desired with confectioner's sugar, add one-half teaspoon almond flavoring, and tint a delicate green with vegetable coloring. Cut the pineapple slices in quarters, and distribute with the grapefruit sections among eight glasses. Pour over the syrup and chill. Serves eight.*

INSURANCE HEAD HOLDS MEETING BY TELEPHONE

His Voice Greeted 70 Agencies in Nation, Spans the Pacific During Novel Conference

One of the largest telephone conferences which has recently taken place, and the first one in which a trans-Pacific connection was ever attempted, was held last January, when President George W. Smith of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company made use of a series of telephone hook-ups to send his annual report to seventy of the company's agencies in the United States and to one in Honolulu.

Loud speakers were installed by the Bell System in the various insurance offices of the company throughout the country. The plans for the conference had been kept secret, so that when the time came for the various audiences to gather, they were surprised to hear the voice of their president talking from Boston about the financial condition of the company and the success with which it had operated during the past year.

In Los Angeles, Mr. Smith's father and mother had been invited to attend the meeting, and they listened with unusual pride and pleasure as their son delivered his talk.

The New England Mutual Life Insurance Company was so pleased with the result of the telephone conference that Mr. Smith declared his intention to use it again during this year. In addition, it is planned that various region groups will hold conferences of their own.

THIS WAS NO ILL WIND FOR TELEPHONE MAN

It was a windy morning down in Oklahoma City, and as Fred Miller, collection supervisor for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company at that place, left his home for work he noticed a stamped, addressed envelope carried by the wind into his front yard. Picking it up, he read his own name and the address of the business office of the telephone company. Inside the envelope was a check dated the day before, in payment of a bill. Mr. Miller became his own letter carrier, took the bill with him to the office, and credited the customer's account.

CENTRAL CONTROL OF MILLS PROVES BOON TO CUSTOMERS

Fourteen mills belonging to the Flour Mills of America, Inc., operating in six states, are now under the centralized control of the headquarters office in Kansas City, through the use of Bell System toll and tele-typewriter services. As a result, the corporation is able to give both information regarding price and shipping data while the customer holds the line.

The new arrangements were developed by commercial representatives of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in co-operation with the flour company. The mills, which have a total wheat storage capacity of 9,000,000 bushels, are located in the principal wheat-growing regions of the country in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Oklahoma. When a flour buyer wishes to place an order, he now calls the Kansas City office by long distance telephone, and while he holds the line the headquarters office quotes prices and tells him when his order can be shipped and from what mill.

Details are closed promptly, instead of through correspondence, and not only that, but the buyer knows when and where he will get his flour. The privilege of telephoning orders for flour at the mill company's expense has been extended to 5,000 customers.

CHILD SUMMONS AID WHEN FAMILY IS FELLED BY GAS

Because little ten-year-old Bessie Kafka of Baltimore not only knew how to use the telephone, but also recognized its value in an emergency, she was able to summon aid when her mother and little three-year-old brother John were overcome by coal gas recently. When the gas began to seep upstairs from the furnace, no one noticed it until all three began to grow weak from its effects. Suddenly the mother and baby brother collapsed, and Bessie, almost overcome herself, tried to rouse them. But they were already unconscious, and, terror-stricken, the child ran to the telephone and called a nearby relative. Within a few minutes police and a municipal ambulance crew, with a resuscitation machine, were on the scene, and after nearly an hour's efforts succeeded in reviving both the mother and child.

MOKENA

Joseph Kohl, aged 56 years, a former resident of this section, died at Wieboux, Montana Sunday according to a telegram sent to his relatives here by Frank Knudson with whom he had been staying off and on for many years.

The deceased was born October 20, 1875 in Orland township, the son of the late Anton Kohl.

About nineteen years ago he left this section for Montana where he has been located ever since. He was unmarried.

Surviving are two brothers Lawrence and John Kohl of Mokena, two sisters, Mrs. Mary Schweser of Joliet and Rose residing in Indiana.

Mrs. Edna Tooley, former Mokena resident now of Harvey has filed a second bill for divorce against Frank A. Tooley in the Circuit Court of Will County. The first bill was filed in 1932 but was later dismissed by the complainant.

The Mokena public school reopened Monday morning after being closed the past week due to scarlet fever.

The medical examination of pupils as had been announced for Monday morning, was dispensed with.

The coming village election now gives promise of being quite a live one. Only three candidates have filed for village trustees and it is understood that a dark horse candidate is being groomed to be run in.

The Young People of the St. John Evangelical are planning to hold a play entitled "The Lost Church" sometime in April.

The Brotherhood of the St. John Evangelical church was host to the Evangelical church Brotherhood of Harvey Monday night. A good attendance was noted and all enjoyed a nice time. Dart ball was the diversion. Senator R. J. Barr and his campaign manager Arch Jeffries of Joliet stopped in for a few moments and the senator made a brief address regarding his candidacy.

Those taking the examination for the Mokena postoffice Saturday at Joliet were: Margaret Maue, Florence Hauck, George Marti, Clarence Werner and Simon Hohenstein. The examination for the New Lenox postoffice was held the same day.

The examination for the Frankfort postoffice will be held March 24th.

Preliminary contests will be held in each school in the county to select representatives to the Division Spelling Contest. The Director of Education will determine the details and manner of conducting the school and division contests. A badge will be awarded to each school champion.

Words selected from Jones Complete Course in Spelling will be used in the school and division contests.

Tinley Woman's Club Holds "Get Acquainted" Meeting

A poem entitled "Faith" written specially for the forming of the Tinley Park Woman's Club was read by Mrs. John Swisher.

FAITH
By Trudie Noehring Swisher
Slowly I strolled through the heart of a forest Listening in rapture to song of a stream.

Gently the wind sighed through branches above me,
Bird-calls re-echoed and all was serene.
Casting aside every burden of sorrow,
Weaving a fabric of beautiful dreams.

White clouds above me, asail in the heavens,
God gave the music, I, humbly the theme.
Out in the aisles of that beautiful woodland,
Faith re-established itself in my heart.

Faith in my fellow-man—faith in their efforts,
Faith in desire to make a new start.
Thus I communed, contentment embraced me,
Gone was the bondage of life's toil and care.

ONWARD, a voice seemed to whisper within me,
Onward, press on onward, no time for despair.
Thus turned my thoughts to the pioneer mother:
The pioneer mother with babe at her breast.

She wove in life's patchwork of sunshine and sorrow,
Her firm faith in God, and it weathered the test.
On through the ages, we read of fine women;
Women whose faith conquered time and again;

Mothers whose faith in a cause have developed
Some of our bravest and noblest men.

Today in this little white church,

WE have gathered
To bind in a union of faith and of love,
Our hearts and our hands in a work that is worthy—
Asking for guidance and strength from above.
Faith in our officers, faith in our members,
Faith in the standard we want to express;
Only through faith may we grow and develop,
Reaching the summit of joy, through success.

The meeting opened with prayer. Salute to the flag. Singing of the Star Spangled Banner with Mrs. Olive Panknin at the piano.

Soloists were: Mrs. John Boeyer and Mrs. Ruth Fretag with Mrs. Lois Winsor accompanist.

The tables were decorated by Mrs. Wm. Funk.

The luncheon chairman was Mrs. Edmund Moss and she was assisted by members of the club.

The reception committee consisted of Mrs. H. Boldt, Mrs. Thelma Crist. The decorations were in charge of Mrs. R. Hug, Mrs. H. W. Wyman. Supervision: Mrs. Charles Nielsen.

The charter members are:

Mrs. Wallace B. Combs, Mrs. Charles Nielsen, Mrs. Henry Wyman, Mrs. John Funk, Mrs. John Swisher, Mrs. Edmund Moss, Mrs. Raleigh Bagby, Mrs. Rudolph Hug, Mrs. John Klepper, Mrs. Lois Winsor, Mrs. Henry Boldt, Mrs. Florence Fiele, Mrs. Ruth Fretag, Mrs. Alice Hickey, Mrs. Wm. March 31 Is Set As Dead Line For Corn-Hog Sign-Up

Six o'clock on Saturday, March 31 has been set as the dead line for all farmers in Cook County and other Illinois counties who wish to sign up in the government Corn-Hog adjustment program, according to word received by Farm Adviser C. G. Barrett from Extension Service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. This leaves only a short time for those farmers who have not yet come in on the plan to get their applications completed and turned in to the farm advisers, it was pointed out.

The dead line was set by the state advisory committee on the Corn-Hog Campaign, with the approval of the AAA officials at Washington and applies to all counties. Sign-up of Illinois farmers has been a success and before the dead line arrives, it is not improbable that 125,000 contracts will have been signed by the farmers of the state of Illinois, who have agreed to cut their corn and hog production during the coming year under the government plan, it was reported.

Some increase between now and the dead line is anticipated in this county. Cook County's Agriculture, which is primarily truck gardening and dairying, quite naturally does not lend itself so emphatically to this program. However, the interest has been all that has been anticipated.

The dead line applies to the first signature, explains the College's Extension Service, and not the second or final signature to be inserted after the allotment committee has made the necessary adjustment. The date for the second signature will be announced by the county committee, depending upon progress in the respective counties. The last date upon which contracts will be sent to Washington will be set later.

Mail man finds freedom from furnace worries!

An interview with Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Wernicke, 15741 Marshfield Avenue, Harvey, Illinois

Mr. and Mrs. Wernicke are planning a new room in the basement now that the coal bin has been eliminated and there is no soot or dirt. The picture shows them going over their plans.

"Now that we have gas heat I never even think about the furnace any more," says Mr. Wernicke. "Gas heat is so clean, too."

The Wernicke home at 15741 Marshfield Avenue, Harvey, Ill. Over 20,000 Chicago-land homes have installed gas heat.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!
To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense... and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!
Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

ESSENTIAL!

Dreary days and uncomfortable nights might follow a cessation of your gas service. You could, of course, live without this service but modern life would certainly be lacking in many comforts which have almost become necessities. This important service is constantly at your command, 24 hours each day, for cooking and heating and other purposes. This service must be maintained. It has become so essentially a part of living. And from the standpoint of economic common sense, the price you pay for this service must cover the production and distribution of it, plus a reasonable return on the money invested to make it possible.

LET a U. S. Postman tell you what it means to have gas heat—and be free of furnace worries!
"I start my route pretty early in the morning," says Mr. Wernicke, "and I have to be out a good many hours during the day. Naturally, with our old heating unit, I worried about the furnace all the time. The house was either too hot or too cold. I never knew what was going to happen next. But now that we have gas heat I never even think about the furnace. No more coal to shovel. No more dirty ashes to haul. And it's a treat to come home to a house that's always cozy and warm."

Thousands switching to gas as rates go down

Imagine your home free from soot, dust, dirt, and furnace drudgery! Imagine getting just the temperatures you want, night and day, by adjusting a little thermostat on the wall. Why put up with furnace worries any longer, when rates for gas heat are so low! Think of it—gas heating rates are now only half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season. And—you can try gas heat without investing one cent! We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But—if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Act now!
Don't delay! It is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer on gas heat when it brings so many comforts and conveniences. Call your nearest Public Service office for full information.

Gas heat can be installed in your home without allowing the house to cool off

The young couple were making their first long motor trip. They were driving to Chicago. They had blown out two tires, ruined their clothes in a sudden rainstorm, paid $10 to be pulled out of the mud and then had lost their way. The husband got out with a flashlight to inspect a sign-board.

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward. The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a prescription. It is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they may do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.

BEAUTY TALKS

By MARJORIE DUNCAN

GET ENOUGH SLEEP

ONE of the beauty rules so often neglected is: sufficient sound sleep. Don't let the gay social season, or worry, or anything else interfere with your getting eight hours of sleep, and be sure that your sleep is the restful, rejuvenating, energizing kind.

Lack of sleep makes wrinkles under the eyes, circles, too, puffiness keeps eyes looking tired, skin heavy and leaden.

Here are some simple ways of winning sleep. First, and above all, when you are ready to begin your night's sleep be sure to put to an end the day's mental and physical activity, strain and worry. Make the mind a complete blank at bedtime. If you master that little trick you will find your eyes sparkling the next day and your entire body feeling fit as a fiddle. Remember airy rooms, proper ventilation (throw windows open top and bottom), let the fresh air fill every corner of your sleeping quarters.

Another essential in inducing sound sleep is a comfortable bed.

A darkened room induces sleep. A very quiet room induces sleep. Shiny metals and high colored walls that attract light are not conducive to sleep. Better to have dull finished walls and dull furniture.

Avoid tea, coffee or stimulating foods or beverages in the late evening. Better to take a bedtime snack that will help you sleep better. The old-reliable warm milk, munching a bit of celery, an apple, a glass of fresh fruit juice such as orange or grapefruit or a mixture of both, tomato or sauerkraut juice, hot water with a little lemon in it is especially splendid not only before going to bed but also on arising. The warm bath (not hot) is a good thing to take before retiring and deep breathing exercises always help.

There is actual cosmetic value in eight or nine hours of restful sleep—a sure wrinkle chaser that. It puts bloom in the cheeks (a natural bloom) and restores energy as well as beauty.

Do you use a good eye lotion occasionally? Your druggist can supply a ready-prepared boracic acid wash, or you can make a lotion by adding a teaspoonful of boracic acid to a pint of boiled water. Another good lotion is boiled water to which a little salt has been added—enough to give the water a salty taste. This is the closest you can come to imitating nature's own eyewash—tears.

TAKE PERSONAL INVENTORY

"FIRST, above all, to thine own self be true." This is a beauty maxim. For the woman who knows herself, her possibilities for beauty, sets about enhancing herself and gets off to a good start on the not-very-difficult path to beauty. Every two or three months it is a very good plan to make a complete inventory of personal assets and liabilities. Go from head to toe or vice versa. It makes little difference so long as every phase in the beauty ensemble is taken into account.

A word of caution, however. Don't attempt a complete overhauling, for results will be too discouraging if you do. Promise to devote a half hour or so every day to a complete beauty program, concentrating on the points that need attention most.

Your hair, for instance. Coiffures can be as simple or as elaborate as you please. You may experiment yourself and let your family and friends judge as to what style of haircomb is most becoming. Or, you may go to an expert for an individual haircut and wave. But, whether or not you are your own master in the matter of arrangement, you can take your hair literally into your own hands and make of it the alive, gleaming, "crowning glory" it should be. If your hair is faded, dry, brittle, the hairs splitting or the hair falling, it will soon respond to persistent, regular brushing, massage and hot oil treatments. If the hair is oily, proper shampooing, brushing and occasional dry shampoos will help.

Now we come to the skin, a most important factor in the picture of beauty. Is your skin dry? Then promise yourself a little molding treatment with a good skinfood every night before retiring. Is it oily? Then look to your diet to see whether it includes excess sweets, starches, fatty foods. Also do some exercise. And for local treatment, brisk patting with a good skin tonic will soon set the little oil glands working normally. If blackheads are your chief worry you will need fifteen minutes every day for a complete treatment. Or, if eruptions mar your facial loveliness, then the right treatment, plus inner health, proper diet and exercise will clear your skin sooner than you may believe.

Do you make it a rule to adjust your lamps properly when you read or sew or work? The light should come from behind your left shoulder and should neither leave a shadow nor be too glaring. Never allow a glaring light to shine into your eyes.

DILLINGER FLEES CROWN POINT JAIL

Notorious Outlaw in Another Amazing Escape.

Crown Point, Ind.—John Dillinger, bank robber, gang leader and alleged murderer, who was held here for trial for the killing of a policeman in East Chicago, made an amazing escape from the Lake county jail. Armed with a toy pistol he had fashioned out of a piece of wood and the handle of a safety razor, the outlaw bluffed the jail guards, locked them and the prisoners in cells, took two machine guns from the jail office and the sheriff's car from the jail garage and rode away. He was accompanied by Herbert Youngblood of Gary, a negro accused of murder, and they carried with them a deputy sheriff and a garage man whom they released near Peotone, Ill.

The law authorities of the Middle West were on the alert to catch Dillinger, all police being under orders to shoot him at sight. That he went to Chicago was established when the car he used was found abandoned on a North side street. The federal authorities joined in the hunt when James Fleming, district attorney for northern Indiana, called attention to the fact that the fugitive had violated two federal laws in kidnapping the two men from here and in transporting a stolen car to another state.

Mrs. Lillian Holley, who became sheriff of Lake county after the murder of her husband, who had held the office, refused repeated demands that she resign, and Governor McNutt said he had no power to remove her. District Attorney Fleming said no more federal prisoners would be incarcerated in Crown Point jail as long as Mrs. Holley continued as sheriff.

The turnkey, Sam Cahoon, and the deputy sheriff whom Dillinger carried to Peotone, Ernest Blunk, were put under arrest charged with aiding and abetting the escape of a prisoner; and various investigations of the outlaw's escape were started. Cahoon was accused of leaving open the cell doors into the corridor of the jail so that Dillinger might move around freely. Both he and Blunk were charged with calling Warden Lew Baker so that Dillinger might lock him up and also calling other prisoners and guards. They were also charged with leaving keys where Dillinger could obtain them.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS

Another lawyer vacancy in the ranks of the Democratic national committee was assured as Arthur F. Mul-ton of Nebraska handed in his resignation—with President Roosevelt's consent.

Information on bankers' salaries released by the senate banking and currency committee revealed that during the critical year which ended June 30, 1933, ten bank officials were receiving salaries of $100,000 or more and nearly 400 were drawing salaries of $25,000 or more.

In order to obviate a break in the studies in Matthew and still have an Easter lesson, the review should be omitted and the lesson for April 1 taken instead.

I. Jesus Christ the King, Taking Account of His Ministry (vv. 13-17).

1. The place (v. 13). It was at Caesarea Philippi, the northern limit of Jewish territory. It was significant that the announcement concerning the Church should take place in this region.

2. The time in Christ's ministry. It marked a turning point. His ministry was largely restricted to his disciples after this. The cross was a short time ahead. The Messiah had already been rejected. They had already charged him with being in league with the devil and sought to kill him. It was highly important that the disciples should have clear views as to Christ's person in order to stand the test of the trial and crucifixion of Jesus.

3. Peter's confession of Jesus (vv. 13-16).

a. The occasion (vv. 13-15). Two questions asked by Jesus provoked this confession.

(1) As to the opinion of the people concerning him (vv. 13, 14). They recognized him as a teacher and prophet of more than human authority. Today, as then, there is a diversity of opinion concerning Jesus. Some think that he is only a man; others that he is a great teacher but nothing more. It was his persistent claim to be the Godman, the very Son of God, that sent him to the cross.

(2) As to the personal opinion of the disciples (v. 15). It was not enough for them to be able to tell what opinion the people held concerning Jesus. It was necessary that they have clear personal knowledge.

b. The content (v. 16). It consisted of two parts.

(1) "Thou art the Christ." This means that Jesus of Nazareth was the Messiah, the fulfiller of the Jewish hopes and expectations.

(2) "The Son of the living God." This acknowledged him to be divine. It was the recognition of his glorious person in keeping with the Jewish hope (Isa. 9:6, 7).

4. Christ's confession of Peter (vv. 17-19). Peter had made a noble confession. Now Jesus confesses him. Those who confess Christ shall be confessed by him (Matt. 10:32, 33).

5. Christ's charge to the disciples (v. 20). He asked them not to tell any man that he was the Messiah. The time was not ripe for such testimony.

II. The New Body, the Church, Announced (vv. 18, 19).

Following the confession of Peter, Jesus declared his intention of bringing into existence a new body. To the members of this body he promised to give the keys of the kingdom. Peter was to have a distinguished place in this body. The keys entrusted to him were used at Pentecost and again in the case of Cornelius. Christ has the keys of Hades and death.

III. The King Predicts His Death (vv. 21-23).

This prediction was no doubt startling to the disciples. They did not yet realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion of the cross. So unwelcome was this announcement that Peter cried, "This shall not be unto Thee." Later Peter saw through the darkness the sunlight on the hill tops beyond the cross. Redemptive victory through Christ's death is yet the stumbling block to many.

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (vv. 24-26).

To follow Christ means suffering. To follow him is to turn one's back upon the world.

1. There must be denial of self. There is a wide difference between self-denial and denial of self.

2. "Take up his cross" (v. 24). This cross is the shame and suffering which lie in the path of loyalty to Christ. To do our whole duty will bring suffering (II Tim. 3:12).

3. Follow Christ (v. 24). This means to have the mind of Christ, to be like Christ. All shall be rewarded when Christ comes in glory.

Religion Gives Confidence

Religion gives the religious soul the confidence born of close touch with the center of all things. "I can do all things," says the Christian, "through Christ who strengthens me." Is not this worth while?

The Need Today

The need today is for men and women of active personality, men and women who cannot only do things themselves, but also can get things done by others.

SMALL HOME NOW ADVOCATED TO END DEPRESSION

The very best thing to complete the rout of the depression would be a nationwide building program, adding 50,000,000 to 75,000,000 rooms to American homes by use of private capital. So said President Henry I. Harriman of the United States Chamber of Commerce at Buffalo a few days ago. Such a program, he insisted, would do for business what the automobile did a few years ago. And this would be no sudden spurt, for, in Mr. Harriman's opinion, it would take ten years to build merely the houses necessary for a minimum standard of decency and comfort. He estimates the total cost of construction alone at close to $40,000,000,000. And to that may be added more billions for furnishings.

A survey conducted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards in 273 cities reveals a shortage of single family houses in 27 per cent of the cities, and a shortage of apartment space in the smaller cities. The home shortage is more pronounced in the smaller cities and is especially noticeable in New England, the Pacific coast, and the West South Central section.

What this country needs, declared the Southern Lumberman, is not model apartments but small individual homes. And by small homes it does not mean houses costing around $9,000—for which there is, indeed, a market—but houses costing in the neighborhood of $3,000 or $4,000. For these there is a much greater demand, and "the architects and builders and promoters seem to have forgotten that there ever was that kind of a house."

The Southern Lumberman thinks that if means could be found to finance such building it would open a very large untapped field of activity.—Literary Digest.

Whose Fault?

If a Child Won't Play with Others?

Parents who understand children know where to place the blame when a youngster mopes, keeps to himself, or is "ugly" toward others. Sluggishness ruins any disposition, and that's what is usually wrong. But it's just as wrong to dose that child with sickening cathartics. Until 15—or older—a child's bowels need but little aid—a very mild form of help. Stronger things often upset the stomach or weaken the bowel muscles. For the happy solution of this problem see what to do, in the next column:

There are happy, healthy boys and girls who have never known the bitter taste and violent action of castor oil—or similar cathartics. The only "medicine" they ever get—or ever need—to help the bowels is plain California Syrup of Figs. The senna in this fruity syrup has the natural laxative action that assists Nature as it should. Next day, the child feels and acts himself, and has a normal appetite. But use the real California Syrup of Figs, with the word "California" on the label and on the bottle.

One Disadvantage

"Your uncle is very ill—you must be prepared for everything."
"Not everything, doctor, there are other heirs."

Can't Stand It

"Jackie, this is terrible. I have to scold you all day long."
"Don't worry, mummy, I am not a bit sensitive."

"I keep fit"

"...in these days of recovery...if I don't, someone else will have my job." How? "Well, I learned years ago that work...wear and tear...takes something out of men and women—particularly those who work indoors."
"I tore down those precious red-blood-cells faster than my good body could rebuild. A friend told me the story of that grand medicine S.S.S. Now at 4 P. M. I am fit to still 'carry on'!"
"If you feel weak...lack a keen appetite...or if your skin is pale...try S.S.S. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick up in your appetite...your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy."
S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-globin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally. Federal Aid For Pressed Schools

Blanks have just been received, in the office of Otto F. Aken, County Superintendent of Schools, for Federal Aid to all school districts with a population of 5,000 or less. Teachers salaries for the month of February and subsequent months will be paid by the government to districts, where the maximum levy has been made and where they have no cash on hand to continue paying teachers' salaries.
School boards that have not made the maximum levy and have failed to use all available means for raising money for teachers' salaries are not eligible for such relief.

Mr. Aken's auditor is mailing out the blanks to all the eligible school boards and is co-operating with them in the making out of the forms. The forms are to be returned to the County Superintendent of Schools' Office and forwarded to Springfield. Checks will be mailed as soon as the necessary requirements have been completed.

Mark W. Bemis Calls on Voters

Mark W. Bemis of Glen Ellyn called in Mokena this week. He is a candidate for state representative on the Republican ticket.

He is an attorney and a member of the legislative committee of Du-Page County Bar Association, chairman of the Dupage county young Republican clubs, and vice-president
Glen Ellyn Chamber of Commerce.

nees.

An alternative to the court action would be a ruling by the secretary of state on legality of a report filed March 12 by the 41st district republican senatorial committee, in which the committee fixed two as the number of republican nominees for representative to be named in the primary.

Candidates Miller and Bemis argue that the report was filed six days after the legal deadline on March 6, and that as the committee had reached no such agreement at the time of the deadline, three candidates should be nominated.

If the delayed committee report is held illegal, three will be nominated. Otherwise two will be named.

I was born on a farm and have lived in the County all my life. I graduated from the University of Illinois in Literature and Law and have practiced law continuously in Joliet for more than thirty years.

I was State's Attorney
three terms, during which time with one assistant and one investigator I paid to the County Treasurer over $200-000.00, all of which, excepting the expenses of the office, went toward reducing your school taxes.

I stand for reformation of juvenile offenders rather than punishment, whenever it is possible. My knowledge gained from experience in handling such cases while State's Attorney is far more valuable than any theories.

The reputation, ability, experience and past record of every candidate should be carefully examined before pledging one's support to any particular one.

If from such examination you believe that I am as well qualified for County Judge as any of my opponents, and that my nomination may contribute to the success of the Republican Party at the fall election, I respectfully ask for your support and co-operation in my behalf at the Primary on April 10.

Frank G. Brumund

Attorney-at Law, Joliet

Candidate for Republican Nomination for Probate Judge

The history of our country from the beginning shows that many of the keenest minds of every generation have been attracted to the legal profession. This is, perhaps, a natural condition, since in that field exists the greatest opportunity for the exercise of intelligence and talents the service of mankind. Whatever may be the chief factor contributing to this condition, it is an established fact that in mentioning the names of a given number of people who are entitled to classification as the most useful citizens the members of the legal fraternity loom large.

Among many well known attorneys of Will County who by their achievement are entitled to more than ordinary reckoning is Frank G. Brumund, of Joliet, an able and fully qualified candidate for the Republican nomination for Probate Judge of Will County.

Broad of vision, keen, forceful, and energetic, he has advanced to his present profession by the constant pursuit of those ideals which actuated the early lawyers of the province in founding the bar of the commonwealth. It is such useful men of affairs who are factors to be reckoned with in the advance of our community at large.
